“Conrad Stord and Lynda Exley have done it! They engage their readers on every level to keep learning about Arizona fun.” —The Mornin’ Mayor Dave Pratt. www.DavePrattLive.com

LYNDA EXLEY

An independent writer/editor since 1995, Lynda Exley is currently the editor for the SanTan Sun News; editor, writer and publicist for Five Star Publications; and an editor for Arizona Parenting. She is also a former editor for Houston Parent, writer for LA Parent and associate editor for Ahwatukee Monthly among other publications.

An Arizona Press Women member since 1997, Exley has to her credit more than 50 national and state awards for editing and writing. She is the recipient of Arizona Newspaper Association's "Best Entry Outstanding Writing" award, a three-time National Federal of Press Women Communications Contest winner for writing and editing, and has garnered more than a dozen first-place wins in the Arizona Press Women's Communications Contest.

The co-founder of KidsCanPublish.com, Exley is also a public speaker on the topics of writing, publishing, public relations and Arizona history for both adults and children in grades one through eight. She has spoken to thousands of students in just the past few years. She lives in Tempe, Ariz., with her husband, Mark Moorehead, and son, Michael Moorehead, who had his children's book, The Student From Zombie Island: Conquering the Rumor Monster, published at age 11. The acorn certainly doesn't fall far from the tree in her family!
